Central Penn College is launching a new Optometric Technician (Op Tech) Certificate program, only the third such program in Pennsylvania and the first for the capital region. Classes for the 9-month, 18-credit program start July 5. "The Op Tech program is a key addition to our Allied Health programming that prepares students to transition seamlessly from the classroom to the workplace," said Dr. Krista Wolfe, vice president of Academic Affairs and provost at the Summerdale-based institution. "We are proud to be the first higher education institution in central Pennsylvania to offer an Op Tech program," said Wolfe. Currently, there are only two other Op Tech programs administered by higher education institutions in the state—one in Philadelphia and the other on the opposite end of the commonwealth near Pittsburgh. For more information on the Optometric Technician Certificate Program, go to: www.centralpenn.edu/optech.

During the current spring term, 135 Central Penn College students were awarded $116,000 in scholarships by the Central Penn College's Education Foundation. "For the past 17 years, the Education Foundation has been making a difference in the lives of our students by helping make college more affordable," said Sandy Box, director of the nonprofit organization. "Over the last 12 months, our mission has never been more critical, as our students continued to pursue their dreams in the midst of a global pandemic." Students were very appreciative of their scholarship awards.

CAEDC launched its next iteration of the Cumberland Valley Beer Trail on April 1st, this time through mobile devices. The updated Beer Trail rewards patrons for supporting local restaurants, breweries, distilleries, and wineries in the Cumberland Valley, which is vital during the pandemic. The digital passport allows participants to use their mobile device to check in at their locations and win prizes. Prizes include a bottle opener for 5 locations and a t-shirt for 15 locations. Users can add a web-based shortcut on their devices and enter in a special pin number at each location to participate. Learn more.

Join KCA Wealth Management for an upcoming presentation, on either May 18th or 20th at 12:00 PM or 6:30 PM, tied to the teachings of the best-selling book The Bucket Plan. For those of you who currently have a bucket plan, this will further explain the structure and benefits it brings to your retirement plan. Brian Kennedy and Vincent Catalano will share with you some of the major take-aways from the book's teachings, and how they apply to today's economic environment. You will learn: the three biggest dangers for your financial future and how The Bucket Plan can help protect from them, a formula for calculating whether there will be an income deficit in retirement and, if so, how much is needed to recover (and where that money should come from), how to avoid taking on too much investment risk on money you may need in the near future, and how segmenting money in the "Now", "Soon" and "Later" buckets can truly help you achieve a "worry-free" retirement.
